The selection of your Memorial

Following a funeral, the selection of a Memorial for your loved one, is probably one of the biggest decisions you will need to make and this decision is being made at a time of great stress and emotion. Most families only select a Memorial once in their life-time and it can be a daunting task. The last thing you need, is a sales person using high pressure sales techniques. What you do need and should expect, is a Company, who not only knows the rules and regulations of all Cemeteries, but will guide you professionally and sympathetically through the selection process.

Our Members exercise a Duty of Care to all our Client's.

Code of Ethics

Our Association has a strict set of rules by which each and everyone one of our Members' must abide.

Our Members shall:-

1. Maintain the highest standards of business, professional and personal conduct with respect for the public interest.
2. Respect the personal choice of clients and have regard for your diversity of beliefs, religious and cultural practices.
3. Not intentionally disseminate false or misleading information and show good taste in advertising, sales promotion and marketing endeavours.
4. Respect other Members of the Association and their work.
5. Not solicit work with families within 14 days of the Funeral.
6. Not intentionally pass another Monumental Mason's work off as their own, during renovation or restoration work. At all times the original Mason's name must be acknowledged on the memorial

Australian Standards

Our Industry has adopted the Australian Standard AS 4204 - 1994

"Headstones and Cemetery Monuments". Our Members will build your Memorial to a minimum of these Standards and our Association constantly monitors the quality of completed work.

Please, don't put at risk the quality of your Memorial!

Support

Occasionally things don't go to plan. Our Association is here to assist you in discussions with your Mason.
